Using Non-English Language Environments

https://campus.barracuda.com/doc/43222558/

Some parts of ArchiveOne are available in languages other than English. The files required to display non-English in each component are installed with the component, where available.

The available languages are:

- Client facing components (Quick Link, PST Processor, Search Website) are available in French and German
- Admin, Service, and Laptop Client are available in French
- Documentation is available in English only

The language used by the ArchiveOne component is based on the configured user language of the installed operating system. For instance, if a Windows system is configured to run in French, whether French (France), French (Canada) or any other sublanguage of French, then the ArchiveOne client components use a French language user interface. If the component is not available in the operating system language, English is used.

If you have a need for other languages, or wish to produce your own translation, contact your Barracuda sales representative.
