

Click Thinking Newsletter

Overseeing your company's Security Awareness effort is a significant responsibility that's not without its challenges. We're pleased to provide the following insights to help make the job a little easier.

Last Call for Benchmarking!

Time's running out to participate in the October benchmarking campaign. The best part is it's free to all Barracuda PhishLine clients! Contact support or your consultant for details.

Localized Content is Here

A new category of translated emails that have been vetted and reviewed for authenticity by individuals in foreign markets is now available in the Content Center. Look for the Localized Content category to access this new—and growing—collection of material.

Small Changes—Better Experience

If you've visited your instance lately, you may have noticed some updates, like a streamlined log-in page and more analytics around email usage. We hope these ongoing enhancements help you make the most of your training efforts.

Add Fun This Month With a Learning Game!

Cybercrime doesn't pay but employees can learn from it by playing our Click Thinking games, 'Who's In?' and 'It's Here, It's There, It's Ransomware'. These choose-your-own-adventure style games let players assume the role of a cybercriminal and create their own pathways to success—or failure.

October is Cybersecurity Awareness Month

We've added lots of additional content to our Click Thinking bundle so you can make the most of Cybersecurity Awareness month, including:

- Security awareness screensavers
- A :30+ second video with six tips to recognize phishing emails
- Usual Suspects training cards to help recognize scammer tactics

And, of course, our benchmarking campaign will also take place. Make sure you take advantage of all we have to offer!
